Danny Jones will be South Bay's new Public Safety Director

By Brenda Bunting, Editor

A police officer with 14 years experience in law enforcement has been chosen to head up South Bay's Police Department. Danny Jones, 32, a former Lieutenant for the Pahokee Police Department, was hired last week.

South Bay City Manager Michael E. Jackson said Mr. Jones was selected by South Bay Police commissioners at the April 22 meeting. Jones will assume his duties within the next two weeks.

City Manager Jackson says, "The mayor and commission are pleased to have an individual with Mr. Jones' experience, qualifications and knowledge of the local community join our city as public safety director."

As director, Mr. Jones will serve as Chief of Police of the 15-member department and also be in charge of the city's fire department. He replaces Charles Napier, who resigned in March.

Mr. Jones is a lifelong resident of the Glades. He is a graduate of Glades Central High School and Palm Beach Community College. In addition to specialized criminal justice training, he has completed courses conducted by the Federal Drug Enforcement Agency and the Federal Bureau of Investigation. He has also completed 500 hours in Command Officer's Development studies and numerous other career development and management courses.

In 1985 he joined the Pahokee Police Department as a road patrol officer and worked his way up through the ranks to be promoted to Detective Sergeant in 1989 and Lieutenant in 1991. In 1996 Mr. Jones resigned from the Pahokee Police Department to become the Chief of Security of the 350-bed juvenile detention facility in Pahokee.

City Manager Jackson said of Jones, "Being a native of the Glades, Danny knows the people of our community and understands what is needed to lead our public safety department into the next century. I look forward to Danny returning to his hometown and bringing his expertise to our management team."

Children playing with lighter set bedroom on fire

A five-year-old playing with a cigarette lighter caused $2,000 worth of damage to an apartment in Glades Glen Apartment Complex, Belle Glade, around midnight, April 28.

Belle Glade Fire Chief Steve Rice said no one was injured in the blaze, which started in a bedroom closet at the apartment of Dorothy Sanders and her five children, ranging in age from five to 13. He said two of the children were apparently involved in the incident. When the fire started, they tried to cover it with blankets, but the blankets also caught fire.

The West County Chapter of the American Red Cross responded after the fire was extinguished and has provided the family with beds and clothing. Red Cross services are free and are provided to anyone facing a local disaster. The local Red Cross office recently moved to a new location in the old Glades Central Media Center at 425 West Canal.

Group files suit asking for $900 million from sugar

By Brenda Bunting, Editor

The environmental group, Save Our Everglades, has filed suit in Tallahassee, claiming U.S. Sugar Corp. owes the Everglades $900 million for "corruptly influencing voting."

The suit was filed April 25 by SOE attorney, Thom Rumberger. SOE claims U.S. Sugar violated state statute 104.061 (1), which says: "Whoever by bribery, menace, threat, or other corruption whatsoever, either directly or indirectly, attempts to influence, deceive, or deter any elector in voting or interferes with him or her in the free exercise of the elector's right to vote in any election is guilty of a misdemeanor of the first degree..."

SOE claims ads placed by U.S. Sugar misled voters into believing they would be taxed to clean up the Everglades, when the ballot amendment specified polluters would pay the tax.

U.S. Sugar Senior Vice President Robert Buker told the Palm Beach Post the suit by SOE is a "desperate" response to an elections-fraud lawsuit U.S. Sugar filed against the group in February. That suit accuses SOE of falsely claiming not to have the funds to pay $150,000 in fees used to place the penny-a-pound sugar tax on the November ballot. The amount SOE is asking for is the same as the $900 million over 20 years they were proposing polluters pay on the November ballot.

Flo-Sun given green light to burn chipped tires at power plants

By Brenda Bunting, Editor

Cogeneration plants at Okeelanta and Osceola sugar mills have been given the green light to burn chipped tires to power their plants.

Owned by Flo-Sun Inc., the plants were given the okay to test old tires as a fuel source for the two sugar mills. The plants sell their excess electricity to FPL.

Jorge Dominicus, spokesman for Flo-Sun, said Palm Beach County Commissioners agreed to the trial run for 90 days, starting today and ending July 31, 1997.

Flo-Sun hopes the tire-derived fuel can be used as a long-term alternative fuel source. Currently, the two plants burn bagasse, a byproduct of sugar cane, vegetative waste and construction debris. When those products are not available, the plants can use coal and fuel oil, but so far, workers have not used coal, which can cause higher emission problems.

Dominicus said the Flo-Sun would like to test the tire-based fuel because the Department of Environmental Protection has a problem getting rid of old tires and this would be a way to dispose of the tires. He said tires are a clean fuel source.

Palm Beach County Health Department Environmental Administrator James Stormer said the burning of tires for fuel could present air quality problems, since they have a high sulfur content and contain chlorine and various metals. The state Department of Environmental Protection will be monitoring the emissions to see if there are problems.

The cogeneration plants at Okeelanta and Osceola were completed last year, and a certain amount of electricity was to be used by FPL.

In January of this year, FPL said the Panjuli family, owners of Flo-Sun Inc. and U.S. Generating Co., its partner in the project, saying they failed to produce the amount of electricity promised in an agreement. The Panjuli family denies the charges.

Greater Lake Okechobee ecosystem restoration team to establish directive for future of area

The Greater Lake Okechobee Project Coordination Team, one of six subregional groups working under the direction of the South Florida Ecosystem Restoration Task Force Working Group, met Tuesday, April 29 at the South Florida Water Management District headquarters in West Palm Beach.

"The team, which is comprised of representatives from state and federal agencies charged with ecosystem restoration efforts, will establish a directive for the Greater Lake Okechobee subregion for presentation to the South Florida Ecosystem Restoration Task Force Working Group at its May meetings."

The mission of the South Florida Ecosystem Restoration Task Force is to restore, preserve and protect the South Florida ecosystem while maintaining a sustainable South Florida economy. This involves coordinating federal, state, tribal and local government plans and programs in the region. Restoration encompasses the reestablishment of the region's topography, hydrology and ecology to a point that, more naturally duplicates the region's pre-drainage characteristics while preserving its economic base.

The Greater Lake Okechobee Project Coordination Team is charged with developing and maintaining an integrated project coordination plan for ecosystem restoration efforts in the Great Lake Okechobee subregion. The general geographic boundary of the Greater Okechobee subregion includes the middle section of South Florida from the Treasure Coast across to that area of the Gulf Coast encompassing the Caloosahatchee River and its estuary. Lake Okechobee is at the heart of this subregion, which also encompasses the Everglades Agricultural Area. Other subregional teams include Kissimmee River, Lower East Coast, Southwest Florida/Big Cypress Basin, the Florida Keys in addition to a team which will look at the entire ecosystem.

Anyone interested in ecosystem restoration projects in this area is invited to attend the meeting and to provide comment to team members. The meeting will be held in the Everglades conference room located on the third floor of the B-1 building at the South Florida Water Management District headquarters, 3301 Gun Club Road in West Palm Beach.

For more information please contact Missie Barletto at the Okechobee Service Center of the South Florida Water Management District, telephone (401) 462-5260 or (800) 250-4200.

Take Our Daughters to Work Day was a great experience for mentors and young girls

By Stephanie Schneider

Sun Reporter

On Thursday, April 24, I adopted a 12 year old girl for the day. Maslyne Bordenave, a sixth grader at Lake Shore Middle School became my "daughter" for the day and I had the opportunity of teaching her all about my career as a journalist and a news reporter.

The day started at 9 a.m. We were off to Pahokee to cover some news. Maslyne and I took pictures, asked questions, and wrote an article.

We stopped by a few of the places that a small-town news reporter frequents (The High School, Chamber of Commerce, Police Department, etc.) to make sure everything was as it should be and to find out new happenings around town.

Before we knew it, it was time for lunch and we took a break. After lunch though, Maslyne went back to work with a vengeance. Yvonne, The Sun's office manager, scooped Maslyne up and took her into the dark-room to learn how to develop pictures and make prints.

Not long after that, Maslyne got her chance to do some writing. I asked her to write an article about her experiences as a participant in Take Your Daughters to Work Day. She wrote it and entered it into my computer.

Then just as excitedly and hastily as the day had begun, it ended. Maslyne had to go back to school and I had to go continue working. When I dropped her off at Lake Shore Middle School, I wondered if I would ever talk to my "daughter" again. I'm still not sure of that but I am sure, I'll be reading her articles one day.

Twelve girls, ages 10-13, grades 4-6 participated in Take Your Daughters to Work Day.

They were students from Glade View Elementary, Belle Glade Elementary and Lakeshore Middle School and alumni of Kay Me', an after-school program at the Catholic Charities Center in Belle Glade funded by Children's Services Council.

All the participants are active members of Junior Girl Scouts troop # 714, which meets at the Catholic Charities Center. Sister Laura Cavanaugh, Scout Leader and Kay Me' teacher, wanted to give the girls a chance to experience a career first hand, to learn about a career or job that is not dependent on seasonal agriculture.

Sister Laura contacted professional women in the area trying to find job sites to match each girls' interests. Mentors volunteered to take one or two girls for the day and share and involve the girls in their job and work site.

Out of the mouths of babes...area student participates in Take Your Daughter to Work Day and tells her experience as a news reporter for The Sun

By Maslyne Bordenave

Take Your Daughter To Work Day was fun. Working with a reporter was cool. Hey, it's better than going to school. Working with Stephanie Schneider and Brenda Bunting was fabulous. When I grow up I would like to be like Stephanie or Brenda. They make life as a reporter fun and fascinating. Surely when I grow up I will be a reporter. Being a reporter seems like hard work but for now while I am still young, I will just be a kid until I grow up to be 16 or so.

I learned how to write articles, how to ask questions properly, and take pictures.

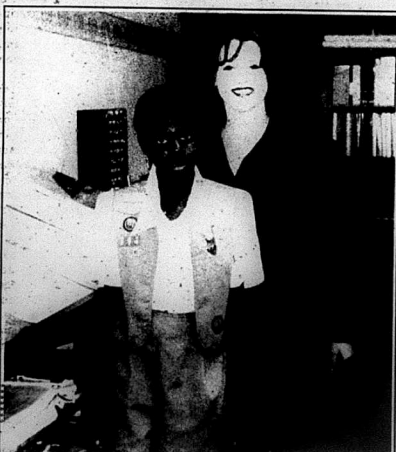

The people I met were funny and are her (Stephanie's) great friends. One of them was Nelson, he rides in the golf cart and just keeps laughing and driving the golf cart at the same time. In Stephanie's words I would say life has just been "the bomb" because of this day. So take your daughter to work day is fun.

If Brenda or Stephanie had a daughter they would have surely made great mothers. I hope we can do this again next year. I can't stop saying today was the coolest.

After I was through writing, Yvonne took me into the dark room and let me help her develop film. She showed me how to develop film and everything. There are three boxes. They are Developer, Fix and Stop. Yvonne showed me how to make film bigger and smaller. She showed me a machine called the waxer that makes the pictures or newspaper articles stick to anything. Do not put your hand on the Waxer because it could burn your hand and put a ugly little burn mark on it.

Being a reporter was great. All the people at The Sun made it peachy keen: Stephanie, Brenda, Lee, and Yvonne have made it "the bomb" over there and I'm going to love being a reporter always.

Local artist Ann Tyler has work displayed in Bink Glisson Museum in West Palm Beach's Yesteryear Village

The much anticipated $400,000 Bink Glisson Historical Museum was dedicated April 20, 1997 in a private ceremony. The event was attended by guests including vendors and individuals whose contributions made the building possible. A.W. "Bink" Glisson, for whom the building is named, was also on hand.

The Bink Glisson

Historical Museum is located in Yesteryear Village on the South Florida Fairgrounds near West Palm Beach. The 4,000 square foot building is a replica of the Haile Plantation, a traditional Cracker-style structure located in Archer, Florida. The museum will house some of Glisson's vast personal collection of artifacts depicting pioneer life in the South. The display will include transcribing equipment popular in South Florida business offices during the 40's and 50's. There are to be Civil War artifacts and a collection of photo equipment such as a 1925 hand-operated moving picture projector. Glisson's very own paintings of historical events are also to be showcased.

The Bink Glisson

Historical Museum will officially open to the public at 10 a.m. on Friday, May 23, opening day of the 4th Annual Pioneer Days Festival at Yesteryear Village. The Museum will operate on a regular basis and is available for school group tours.

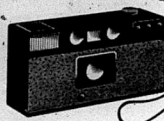

Inside the museum are murals painted by local artist Ann Tyler.

Ringworm, Jock Itch and Athlete's Foot

By Paula Swaford, RN

Well, warm weather looks like it's here to stay for a while. And with it comes the potential for us to develop some really "lovely" things, such as ringworm, jock itch and athlete's foot. All of these are types of fungi and can cause all kinds of discomfort and trouble. Let's talk about the differences and similarities among the three.

Oddly enough, ringworm has nothing to do with worms. It is a fungal infection of the nails, skin or scalp, caused by the same group of fungi that causes athlete's foot and jock itch. It gets its name from the characteristic red rings. The infection can be spread from one person to another, from an animal to a person, or acquired by contact with contaminated soil,

Paula Swaford, RN

shoes, shower stalls and carpeting. It typically begins as a small, pink, round, patch which eventually turns red and grows into a ring shape. The center clears as the ring enlarges. Within a week or two, more patches may appear. To treat ringworm effectively, one can purchase over-the-counter medications specifically made for it, such as Tinactin, Miconazole and Lotrimin. Selsun Blue shampoo applied as a cream is an economical choice also. Use small amounts two to three times a day, following directions on the container. Continue the treatment for one week or more, as needed. To prevent contracting ringworm remember to have all pets checked before bringing them into your home, and teach children not to touch stray dogs or wear sandals in public showers, pools or locker rooms.

Jock itch affects boys and men. Symptoms include minor to intense itching in the groin area and in more serious cases, patches of redness, scaling and raised areas that ooze. This fungus thrives in warmth and moisture, which means that to eliminate it, it is necessary to change sweaty or soiled clothes as soon as possible, and wash underwear, jock straps and exercise clothes in hot water and detergent. Loose, cotton boxer shorts are better than tight shorts or briefs. Using a powder, such as cornstarch, two to three times a day to dust the groin area, especially after showering tends to help. Using Tinactin, Miconazole, or Lotrimin (all OTC medications) even after the symptoms are gone will help to prevent any chance of recurrence.

Athlete's foot, which can cause your feet to be red, itchy and irritated, is really ringworm that affects one in five Americans. These fungi typically spread from person to person in public areas such as showers and swimming pools. Once it infects the feet, athlete's foot thrives in the warmth and moisture of shoes and socks. Other symptoms may include tenderness, soreness, scaling and a burning sensation. In severe cases, the skin between the toes or even the soles of the feet may become unnaturally soft, peel and even crack. To prevent this from occurring, go barefoot when possible, or wear sandals or canvas shoes. Wear cotton socks to absorb moisture and change them every day. Alternate pairs of shoes so that they become dry between wearings. It is important to keep your feet clean and dry. Wash them twice a day with soap and water, drying them completely, especially between the toes. After drying, sprinkle an over-the-counter antifungal powder or spray on them, such as Desenex and Zeasorb-AF. If it persists, try a nonprescription antifungal medication such as Miconazole Cream, Clotrimazole cream or lotion (1%) or Whitefield's tincture. If your problems persist, or you develop pain or tenderness, increased redness or warmth, swelling, discharge or fever of 101 degrees or higher call your physician. Your local pharmacist can also recommend tried and true remedies. The important thing is to get rid of it as soon as possible, so that the condition doesn't worsen. After all, living in Florida does not afford us too many days in the "cool" category; the heat is here to stay and we must learn to live with it and survive. Until next time, stay informed and stay healthy.

pressure screenings were conducted by the Heart Institute at Tallahassee Memorial and the Florida State School of Nursing.

High Cholesterol in the Capitol

Over 45 percent of people who were screened for cholesterol at the Capitol have high or dangerously high readings, according to results just released. The screenings were conducted as part of the American Heart Association's "Campaign to Control Cholesterol" program sponsored by Merck & Co., whose Florida headquarters are in Jacksonville.

Some 310 people, including legislators, were screened for cholesterol at the Capitol earlier this month. Individual readings are kept confidential.

Of the 310 who were screened, 169 people had readings of 199 milligrams per deciliter (mg/dl) or lower, considered to be normal cholesterol. Ninety-nine people had readings of 200 to 239 mg/dl, considered to be borderline high cholesterol, and 42 people had readings of 240 mg/dl or higher, which is dangerously high.

"Cardiovascular disease claims a life every 33 seconds," said Barry Horowitz, MD, a member of the American Heart Association's Cholesterol/Blood Pressure Screening Task Force. "It only takes four minutes to have your cholesterol checked. Not a lot of time when it could save your life."

In Florida, more than 61,000 people died from cardiovascular disease last year, accounting for 40% of all deaths in the state.

"If people only knew that some risk factors for cardiovascular disease could be avoided, such as high cholesterol, high blood pressure, lack of physical activity and smoking, we would have fewer deaths and more people living quality lives," Dr. Horowitz added. "Landmark clinical trials have shown that lowering cholesterol can lower deaths from heart disease; not only in individuals who have already suffered a cardiac event, but also in those who have not yet experienced heart disease."

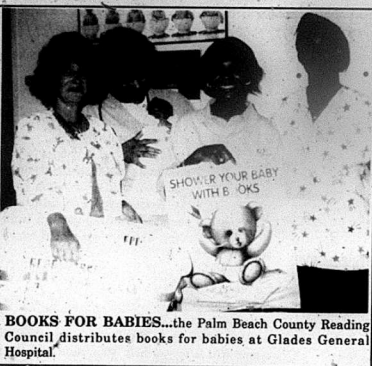

More than 97 million U.S. adults have borderline or dangerously high cholesterol levels, and more than 12 million Americans are eligible for cholesterol-lowering drugs based on their goal cholesterol levels.

As part of the cholesterol program, Governor Lawton Chiles signed a proclamation declaring April 1 as the initiation of "Campaign to Control Cholesterol" in Florida.

Cholesterol as well as blood pressure screenings were conducted by the Heart Institute at Tallahassee Memorial and the Florida State School of Nursing.

BOOKS FOR BABIES...the Palm Beach County Reading Council distributes books for babies at Glades General Hospital.

Books for Babies

Each year, members of the Palm Beach County Reading Council distribute books to the new mothers at area hospitals. The members of this organization, teachers and administrators, carry out this project in order to stress the importance of reading to children at home beginning when they are just babies. This year, books were distributed at three hospitals in the county: Glades General in Belle Glade, Bethesda in Boynton Beach and St. Mary's in West Palm Beach.

Jessie Terry, a member of the Palm Beach County Reading Council and the Parent Liaison at Glade View Elementary, presented the basket of books to the nurses at Glades General Hospital in April. In the coming months, the nurses will give each new mother a bag that says "I Read to My Baby" when they leave the hospital. Each bag contains books, a bookmark and pamphlets giving tips on how and why to read to their children.

Cutting Out Tobacco Can Reduce the Risk of Cancer

Male Smokers Beware: You are a startling 23 times higher chance of dying of lung cancer than compared to those who have never smoked. Women, you're not far behind with an 11 times higher risk, according to the American Cancer Society.

"Cut out tobacco" is the first choice of the American Cancer Society's new "7 Simple Choices" campaign which targets Floridians of all ages by offering life-saving information. This cancer-fighting campaign focuses on preventing 60 percent of cancer deaths through healthy lifestyle choices. It features seven choices that are easy to remember: 1. Choose a different letter of the word "choices"... and each delivers real benefits which will result in better health and well-being. "Our 7 Simple Choices" helps save lives from cancer. It's not to watch loved ones die of cancer because they choose to smoke," said Dr. Sam Monte, a cancer survivor and American Cancer Society volunteer.

Smoking is the most preventable cause of death in our society. Each year, 419,000 res-178,000 to cancer... will lost because of tobacco use.

Cutting out tobacco also greatly decreases your risk of other serious health problems. To receive free "7 Simple Choices" materials that will help you get you on your way to a healthier life, call the American Cancer Society at 1-800-ACS-2345

Stolen fishing poles

The fishing contest at Black Gold has a black mark against it.

I laid my grandchildren's fishing poles and lures down beside my car during the heavy rain. Someone stole them - three poles and lines. This is very sad to have to write about.

Their names were written on the poles. I'm very disappointed that someone would do this at a time when we were celebrating family trust and trying to teach our children to be proud of our community, and honest.

I pray that whoever took them will be blessed, for they surely must have needed them badly.

The Taste of the Glades cookbook was great

I wish to congratulate and commend Sue Teets and Bobbie Mathis and their Black Gold Jubilee committee for the delightful Taste of the Glades cookbook.

Since reading it, I have remained hungry, but I have also been inspired to be a better cook. I found Robert Claxton's "Elephant Stew," page 40, Mike Underwood's "Tomato Soup," page 46, and Doris Ellick's "Preserved Husband," page 96, particularly helpful.

Great job, ladies!
Thank you."

You can help improve your child's writing skills

By Celia Elrod

Many parents realize how important reading skills are to their child's learning. What they may not realize is that writing skills are also critical to their child's success at school - and to their future.

Good writing skills are very important given the requirements of communicating in today's world. Clear thinking and precise expression will increase your child's success in most academic areas in school as well as provide good preparation for life. Here are some tips for helping your child become a better writer.

- Provide a supply of writing materials - a selection of paper, pencils, envelopes, stamps.
- Be sure your child sees you writing letters, lists, memos, a personal diary or journal.

- Encourage your child to keep a diary or journal.
- Suggest a pen pal - a special friend or relative.
- For an older child, provide his or her own stationary.
- Write secret messages to your child and place them on his or her desk, bed, or in a lunch bag.
- Write together - a letter, a poem, a greeting card, a funny story, or about an actual experience.

- Praise your child for writing at home and for his or her ideas and creativity.

Letters to the editor

Dear Editor:

To coincide with the National Summit on Volunteerism, I wish to make the following statement.

Volunteerism has not been unique to our country, however it has been the very basis of our country for over 200 years. Had the many men and women who first served our democracy in its infancy not been volunteers, our country would most likely never have existed as we know it.

Many of us volunteer on a daily basis...many of us have more time to volunteer than others...most of us have a particular cause on which we focus. My focus is my own community. I firmly believe that if you live in a community, then you most certainly should live FOR that community. No matter how much or how little you are able to "live for" your community, you should try as much as you can. Your community is a reflection of yourself and your plans for the future.

For some time now, I have been advocating more involvement not only by ordinary citizens (and I am certainly one of those), but by our elected "public servants" I have also suggested that their meager "salaries" for their "jobs" in city government COULD and SHOULD be put to greater use if it were to be donated back to Pahokee and earmarked for a specific program that each official would choose at his discretion.

It is with this in mind, and as a pledge to our nationwide effort to raise awareness of volunteerism and involvement in our communities, that, should I be elected to city commission, I choose to donate my "civic salary" back to my wonderful hometown of Pahokee. I have many interests to consider as to where I would spend that money, but I feel it would serve our community well to turn that money over to our Chief of Police, "Skeet" Salvatore, to be spent in an effort to provide our police force with the new knowledge and equipment needed to fight the "war on drugs, hatred, and attitude" so rampant in specific parts of our community.

I also believe that each commissioner should spend at least one day a month in commission chambers to be available to their citizens for one-on-one discussions. I will station myself in said chambers for the first three months of my elected term, six hours a day, five days a week to listen to and hopefully understand and help our citizens with their concerns and fears. This is the very LEAST we should all expect from our elected servants...it IS accountability and is related to ethics in government.

Since we have no local paper, and have very few "arenas" to discuss the issues and educate our electorate, we must rely on your interest to get this message out. Please visit us here in Pahokee and take a look at a small town fighting with "big town" problems...a town resting on Palm Beach County's other coast...a town that deserves better, and with commitment and work, WE can make it better.

Thankfully,
Larry M. Wright

Time to clean up the Everglades cleanup

By J. Stanley Marshall
Chairman and CEO of the James Madison Institute

As its 1997 session passes the half-way mark, the Florida Legislature is grappling with how to protect the taxpayers and the environment from a state agency that is out of control.

The agency is the South Florida Water Management District, which is in charge of the Everglades cleanup, a task so monumental that the U.S. Secretary of the Interior has called it the most comprehensive ecosystem restoration project in history. Three years ago the Legislature enacted a cleanup plan, the Everglades Forever Act. The Act instructed the District to build a series of giant filter marshes (dubbed Stormwater Treatment Areas or STAs) to remove phosphorus from water entering the Everglades from upstream and to build two giant spillways to restore ancient waterflows in the River of Grass. This Everglades construction project was to take 10 years and cost $685 million. The District pledged to meet the timetable and budget.

But a funny thing happened on the way to the filter marshes. In February the District announced that the project was $180 million over budget, even though not one spade of dirt had been turned. Land purchases alone (the STAs will require 40,000 acres, roughly the size of Miami and Fort Lauderdale combined) were running $40 million more than planned, the District said.

Hauled before outraged committees of both House and Senate in March, water management officials backtracked. Over two weeks, the $180 million/20-year deficit became, in their presentations, an $82 million/five year deficit, then $80 million, then a $29 million/year shortfall but with major expense items simply dropped. Land acquisition cost overruns alone magically plummeted more than 50 percent to $18 million. At the end of the most recent hearing, a deeply skeptical Senate Natural Resources Committee Chairman, Jack Latvala, told District officials that every time they came back their deficit numbers were lower; maybe if he had them back one last time, they would report a profit.

Meanwhile, analysis circulating in Tallahassee and testimony of District officials pointed to more troubling problems:

- District officials testified that they had purchased 5,000 acres not authorized in the Act;
- Although the Act specified using public lands for two filter marshes, on its own the District had switched to private lands, adding at least $18 million to the project's bill;
- Even though the federal government was to buy the land for one STA, the District bought the land itself, expecting later reimbursement, and in effect giving Washington a $25 million, interest-free loan. Worse, since the District acted without authorization from national officials, the federal government may not be obligated to pay back at all.
- The specifics of the project read like a water bureau's Christmas list, including: $1 million for electronically controlled pump stations from District headquarters, even though the stations will be fully manned; a $700,000 visitors' pavilion; $40,000 for "special photography"; and a $3 million, unauthorized water supply structure to pump water away from the Everglades, not to it, as the Act requires. Numbers that change daily; unauthorized purchases; wasteful, gold-plated designs; by now the District looks like an agency that believes the taxpayers' cookie jar is now on the shelf and no one is watching to see whose hand goes in. But even if the water managers were more vigilant with taxpayers dollars, the troubles run deeper than mere bureaucratic waste. With the highest-paid bureaucrats and most lavish budgets in Florida, government overseen by a part-time governing board, the District may simply not have the public accountability required for a project as ambitious as the Everglades restoration.

As a first step to deciding what must be done, bipartisan legislation has been introduced to create a joint House and Senate oversight committee for the Everglades construction project. With expert help, this committee will assess how to get the project finished on time and on budget, including whether the project should remain in the District's hands at all.

Legislative oversight and establishing accountability in the Everglades cleanup are long overdue and deserve the support of every Floridian. If District officials can claim a $180 million deficit (or $80 million, or $29 million) three years into a ten-year construction program, where will they be in three more years if they're not brought under control now? The Legislature should move fast. The people of Florida deserve guarantees that the runoff into the Everglades will be water-clean water-from their cities, agricultural areas, not their tax dollars.

First United Methodist Church in Pahokee to host Maranatha Choir

On Wednesday, May 7, 1997 The Maranatha Choir of University United Methodist Church and Student Center in Gainesville, Florida will perform a contemporary Christian concert program entitled "Soli Deo Gloria." The concert will be at the First United Methodist Church in Pahokee. The program, which begins at 7:30 p.m. is free and is open to the public. A love offering will be collected to help share in the travelling expenses of the choir.

Each semester, more than forty young people show their love for Jesus Christ through song and testimony as they sing in

The Maranatha Choir at University United Methodist Church and Student Center in Gainesville. Under the direction of Mr. Robert W. Jackson, this group of students from the University of Florida and Santa Fe Community College give freely of their time and talent to rehearse weekly during the school semester to prepare for Sunday worship services as well as concerts within the community and state.

This type of ministry began for the Maranatha Choir in 1971 when a handful of students gathered together to sing and fellowship with one another. As The Maranatha Choir commemorates 26 years of music ministry, it celebrates appearances in over 300 churches in Florida and the southeast, as well as several Florida Conference meetings, Pastor's Schools and district events. In addition to their appearances, The Maranatha Choir have completed three cassette recordings under its own label.

Together the members of The Maranatha Choir have built a musical family that worships and shares together and returns to others the love that they have received through Jesus Christ.

Heaven's Bread Basket... nourishment for the body and soul

By Stephanie Schneider
Sun Reporter

On Monday, April 28, Heaven's Bread Basket celebrated its one-year anniversary by doing what it does best, serving hot meals to those less fortunate than others.

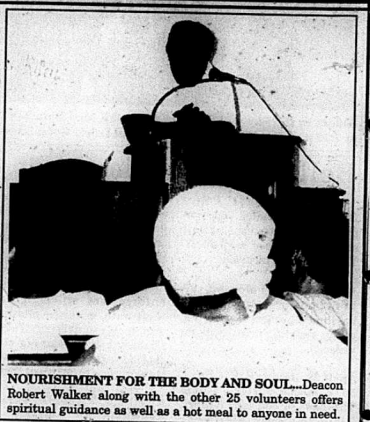

Heaven's Bread Basket was the vision of Rev. Leon Camacho Jr. From that vision, over 25 regular volunteers have turned a need to do well into a volunteer service that feeds up to 300 people every Monday. It's run by the parishioners at Mt. Calvary Baptist Church located just off of Hwy 80 in Belle Glade and it is in part supported by donations made by community businesses and individuals.

Individuals come to the church and can get a hot meal and a food basket just for listening to a short sermon. It seems like a small price to pay for nourishment for the body and soul.

People from as far away as Pahokee, Canal Point, Lake Harbor and Belle Glade flock to Heaven's Bread Basket. Transportation is even available in some areas.

Heaven's Bread Basket will be having a concert featuring over 100 area children to raise money. It will be on Saturday night at 7 p.m. at Mt. Calvary Baptist Church.

NOURISHMENT FOR THE BODY AND SOUL...Deacon Robert Walker along with the other 25 volunteers offers spiritual guidance as well as a hot meal to anyone in need.

Tornadoes, Flying Cows, Dorothy and Her Dog

By Mike Lyons

The flying cow. Of all the scenes from last year's big summer movie, Twister, most people remember the flying cow.

The movie included many memorable scenes including some of the most dramatic images of a tornado ever recorded. But, ask anyone about the movie, and chances are they will remember the flying cow.

After all, an airborne heifer is not something we see very often. Come to think of it, a soaring bovine is a manifestation most of us have never seen and probably never will. Your average cow spends its life eating grass, taking it easy and saying "moo." I.e., flying lessons are not something it is interested in.

I suppose it is possible that a tornado could propel a cow up, and away into the sky. However, there has never been any such documented case. There was a time when a twister hit a chicken coop and plucked all the feathers off a chicken. The chicken was alive but naked and, no doubt, very confused.

"No, that flying cow was Hollywood playing fast and loose with the facts. There were other meteorological errors in the movie but the basic theme of the film was based on a true story.

Yes, there are people who chase tornadoes across the back roads of Texas and Oklahoma. They've been doing it every spring for the past 25 years. The reason? To learn why some thunderstorms produce tornadoes while others do not.

"We look at a storm the same way a doctor looks at a patient," said Howard Bluestein, a University of Oklahoma professor who has been chasing tornadoes since 1977.

Chasing one of Nature's most powerful storms sounds like a foolish thing to do but Bluestein says it is not that dangerous. "We believe we understand the structure of storms so we don't put ourselves in any danger of being hit by the tornado," he said.

"The biggest danger is driving those narrow country roads."

In the movie Twister, the storm chasers were trying to place an instrument package inside the tornado. The device was nicknamed Dorothy, from another movie, The Wizard of Oz.

From 1981 to 1983, the real storm chasers attempted to deploy the TOTO Tornado Observatory in a tornado's path. TOTO, named for Dorothy's dog, was a 400 pound package of instruments the chasers hoped would survive a tornado while measuring what was going on.

Bluestein and his crew were able to place TOTO close to some twisters and obtain useful information. But, the researchers gave up on TOTO in 1983. "We decided it was too difficult to place the package in a tornado's path," Bluestein said.

Today, Bluestein's crew attempts to obtain more precise meteorological readings in and around a thunderstorm. Using weather balloons, portable Doppler radars and video cameras, Bluestein has been able to create computer models of storms. They've also improved the training of tornado spotters who can scan the sky looking for tornadoes when a tornado watch is issued.

Bluestein has probably seen more tornadoes than anyone in history. "It is on the order of a hundred or more tornadoes," he said. "Nature is incredible. Tornadoes are powerful and beautiful."

He's seen hundreds of tornadoes, thousands of thunderstorms and just about everything Mother Nature can come up with. Everything, that is, except a flying cow.
